Government of Tomorrow
Kings Are Out
National Gambling
War on Rats

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

A good-looking young man, 28, 6 feet 4 inches tall, has written a book that he calls "The Government of Tomorrow." He is the Comte De Paris, whom his friends and shadowy courtiers call Monsieur De France and "Your Royal Highness." He and a few others believe that, if he had his rights, he would be sitting on the French throne. They and he may be glad that he is not sitting there. It would not be comfortable for long.

The book, "The Government of Tomorrow," by the young author, Henri De France, to give him the name that he prefers, is not such as one of the old and real kings of France would have written. It would not have been written by the French King Louis Fourteenth, who wanted it understood that everything in France really belonged to him, and that certain of his subjects had some of it in their possession by his permission and at his pleasure.

For the time being, at least, "kings are out" of the picture of government and social organization. Man may become dictator, if he has enough power of will and mind, but nobody is interested in knowing who your ancestors were outside of Asia. Ancestors have very little to do in this day.

If somebody could write a true and prophetic book on "The Government of Tomorrow," telling just how men will be managed, by dictators or by themselves, fifty or a hundred years from now, it would be an interesting book and would probably surprise everybody.

In Northern Ireland, still ruled by England, police have seized thousands of sweepstakes tickets, confiscating them. They were being smuggled by automobile to be sold to Englishmen. The British wisely do not intend that their people should have their minds taken from serious work, or their money squandered, in the foolish, hopeless pursuit of gambling profits.

Outside of England, Europe is largely devoured by the gambling mania, with governments actually encouraging the gambling and the buying of lottery tickets.

In France, where on almost every block you see lottery tickets for sale, and every newspaper prints pages about the winners, and the hawkers of tickets shout, "Get the winning tickets, I reserve them for my clients," the government explains that some way must be found to persuade the French, traditionally thrifty, to take out and put into circulation the money that they keep hidden away. The plan is highly successful, for all perhaps, except the most old-fashioned peasant, who will not exchange a tenfranc piece for a piece of lottery paper.

Partly as a result of universal spending for lottery tickets, partly because of the recent ultra-radical election, and ultra-radical legislation, many small merchants are going into bankruptcy, adding one to the government's numerous worries.

The merchants say that the government uses its great influence and advertising powers in every postoffice and railroad train everywhere, to make people spend their money gambling. The people cannot spend the same money buying merchandise.

Under British regulations every ship entering port is thoroughly fumigated, holds where disease-bearing rats might hide are filled with deadly gas. The dead rats are shovelled out, then the cargo unloaded.

The port of London medical officer reports that the rat population of ships is diminishing rapidly, thanks to the exterminating processes, thanks also to the fact that ships are being built rat-proof, and buildings in ports where ships dock from foreign ports are also being rat-proofed.

Ships bring all the plagues of the East, and other plagues are carried by the assortment of fleas that live on the rat.

If men could make up their minds to stop murdering each other for a while and make the world-wide war against rats the human race would be better off. War against the rat could be extended to include the disease-bearing mosquitoes and flies.

The war against disease-bearing animals might be extended for the protection of children to a war of common sense against allowing young children to bury their faces in the fur of cats and dogs that collect germs from everywhere and are not disinfected.

It is pathetic to read in a doctor's report of a kind-hearted little child petting a partly paralyzed kitten, the child subsequently stricken with the dreadful infantile paralysis, believed to have paralyzed the kitten.

Soon after the brothers left the wreckage which they had claimed, Baker Simpson and Gene Love, Revere friends, took possession and towed the wreckage to shore, thus having the last word in the matter.

Bare Fire Plot On U.S. Cruiser

NAVY ADMITS SABOTAGE ATTEMPT

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP)—A small fire, "undoubtedly deliberate," was discovered aboard the U. S. S. Indianapolis on August 25 while it was undergoing routine overhaul in the Brooklyn navy yard, Captain C. A. Dunn, manager of the yard said today.

Captain Dunn said in a statement that the fire was due to a short circuit in some of the auxiliary power cables, and that damage was confined to the cables.

He said two nails were found in one circuit in a fireroom of the 10,000-ton naval cruiser on which President Roosevelt took a trip in 1933, and another nail was found in another circuit which was dead.

"This action was undoubtedly deliberate," he said. "The navy yard has no one under suspicion at the present time."

The statement follows:

"About Aug. 25, 1936, a small fire occurred on the U.S.S. Indianapolis, then undergoing routine overhaul at the navy yard, Brooklyn, N. Y.

201 Northbridge Voters Barred

Whitinsville, Sept. 11 (AP)—Two hundred and one new voters received notice today from the Northbridge board of registrars that they will not be permitted to vote at the state primaries Tuesday and their names will be dropped from the voting list.

The board explained that the voters were registered illegally, having been enrolled a meetings of the registrars held within 20 days of the primaries. State laws do not permit registration within that period. Special enrollment sessions will be conducted after the primaries for the benefit of these voters, board members said.

Edith Maxwell, Killer of Father, Gets New Trial

Staunton, Va., Sept. 11 (AP)—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today granted a new trial to Edith Maxwell, under a 25-year sentence for the murder of her father in 1935.

The court, however, refused to grant bail to the young woman, who has been in jail since July 21, 1935.

The court's reversal of the verdict of a Wise county circuit court jury reopened one of the most celebrated legal cases in Virginia court history.

Miss Maxwell, 21-year-old school teacher, was convicted in November, 1935, of the murder of her father, Trigg Maxwell, in their cabin home at Pound on July 21.

She contended that she struck him with a high-heeled slipper as he attempted to whip her in a family quarrel. She, her mother and a younger sister testified the father was drunk at the time.

The state argued that the slaying was deliberate and the outgrowth of long-standing enmity between father and daughter. The state did not ask the death penalty, however.

Circuit Judge H. A. W. Skeen, the trial judge, twice refused to set aside the jury's verdict and grant a new trial.

The Supreme Court consented March 18, 1936, to review the case, which was argued at the court's June term in Wytheville.

Edith's mother, Mrs. Anne Maxwell, is also under indictment for the slaying of her blacksmith-miner husband, but her trial has been postponed pending the daughter's appeal.

GOV. LANDON OFF FOR N. E. BATTLE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

By International News Service Staff Correspondent

Chicago, Sept. 11 (INS)—The "Sunflower special," carrying Governor Alfred M. Landon en route to Portland, Maine, arrived here shortly after noon (EDT) today.

The Republican presidential candidate planned a four-hour stay in Chicago as the guest of Republican National Committeeman George Harding and other G. O. P. leaders.

He was enthusiastically cheered as he waved to the welcoming crowd, and shouted:

"How are you."

Landon then was taken to the Harding home for lunch and a conference with state Republican chiefs.

He was to board the train again late this afternoon and make brief platform speeches in Indiana on his way East.

"Government and Business" is the subject of the address he will deliver at Portland, calling upon the people to rally behind the Republican party and repudiate the "New Deal" in the state election Monday.

Coming into Chicago his train was an hour late.

Former Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, after conferring several hours with Governor Landon at Topeka, is revealing he had read a draft of the Portland speech, declared:

"I am sure it has a punch in it.

"The Republican organization in Pennsylvania is working hard. We are confident of carrying the

2000 REDS DIE IN BATTLE

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

Burgos, Spain, Sept. 11—The rebel "Nationalist" junta announced today that more than 2000 Spanish government troops had been killed in an ill-fated attack on the island of Majorca.

The attack occurred September 4, the Junta announced.

A government column of 6000 men participated, and the insurgents said only about 4000 were able to retreat by ship to Valencia.

A dozen cannon, 21 machine guns, 40,000 cartridges and 200 hand grenades were reported taken by the rebels.

The newspaper Diario de Burgos, at the same time, said a "final" attack on San Sebastian, in the north, was imminent and that negotiations for surrender of that city had failed because the government defenders demanded unionized removal of "Red" militiamen in Bilbao to aid the defense there.

RED THREAT IN FRANCE

Communists May Seize Plant

Paris, Sept. 11 (AP)—Leftist French workers plan to seize the Renault automobile factory outside Paris, the government was told today, for "an experiment in industrial Sovietization."

A delegation representing 1500 foremen and technicians in the Renault works, one of the largest industrial plants in France, gave the information to Premier Leon Blum in his office.

The group told Blum the movement was started by Communist employes. They declared they had received information the extremists were planning to take over the plant by force and operate it for themselves temporarily.

PLANT EMPLOYS 34,000

The delegation asked the premier for a government guarantee that non-union employes would be assured of the right to work in the event the "experiment" materialized.

The Renault plant, located at Billancourt, a suburb, employs 34,000 workers to produce army equipment as well as motor vehicles of all kinds.

Meanwhile fresh labor troubles, linked to workers' demands for reconsideration of France's non-intervention policy in the Spanish civil war, brought new worries to cabinet officials.

RED STRIKES SPREAD

Minister of the Interior Roger Salengro left the capital hurriedly for Lille in an effort to halt the spread of occupational strikes in textile establishments.

Striking bus drivers in Paris and the suburbs took control of garages. Building workers at Metz and mill workers at Epinal declared walkouts.

2 YOUTHS SEIZE SHIP WRECK

In Boston Harbor's strangest battle, two Revere chums won out today over two Beachmont brothers for possession of the sunken steamship Romance pilot house superstructure and claimed it for salvage.

Outwitting the brothers Moore of Beachmont, who held vigil on the superstructure throughout the night, while the Coast Guard was waiting to dynamite it, the Revere chums hooked on to the wreckage and towed it to the Winthrop shore.

The Moore brothers, George, 23, and Paul, 21, had made the error of going ashore for a brief respite in their vigil and for something to eat.

Winners in the situation were Baker Simpson, 25, of Crest avenue, and Gene Love, 25, of Pearl street, both in Revere.

TOWED TO WINTHROP

With a motorboat they towed the superstructure to Winthrop and lodged it on a sandbar close to shore, immediately setting about stripping it of brass work and other valuables.

The wheel, compass and other instruments had been removed from the pilot house by coast guarsmen, however, and these were turned over to the Romance's owners today.

Although they had intended dynamiting all the floating heavy wreckage as a menace to navigation, the coastguards admitted that under the maritime admiralty salvage laks anyone who towed wreckage ashore could hold to their salvage claims.

Simpson and Love were of the same mind.

WITHOUT RIGHTS, CLAIM

"We are within our rights in taking it," they said. "It now belongs to us, as we have brought it ashore.

"And nobody has the right to

LANDON STARTS TRIP TO NEW ENGLAND; WILL COVER 8 STATES IN EASTERN TOUR

state for Landon on November 3."

Landon arrived at the Dearborn station in Chicago this morning at 9:20 o'clock, C. S. T., for his first appearance of the campaign in the streets of the mid-west metropolis, leaving Chicago from the Union station at 2 p. m., for the east.

CROSSES 9 STATES

States to be crossed on this trip are Indiana, Ohio, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine, New York, Illinois and Missouri. This will be crossed at night, going to and returning from Maine.

A whirlwind journey into the industrial east, Governor Landon was scheduled to return to Topeka late Tuesday night for a few days before swinging through Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois on his third campaign tour.

On the eastern front he was expected to open fire on several phases of the "New Deal" of especial interest to industry and labor, while on the next long swing through the farm belt he will make his address on the farm problem.

PHILADELPHIA SPEECH

With Pinchot the Republican presidential nominee at Topeka discussed plans for the nominee's final invasion of the East, late in the campaign and during which he will deliver an address in Pennsylvania, probably at Philadelphia.

Though the Maine result will be of great interest to political observers, Governor Landon also has his eyes on the other states in which he will campaign this trip. He will cross New York—biggest prize of all with its 47 electoral votes—returning from Maine Monday.

Governor Landon's itinerary returning from Portland to Chicago was announced as follows:

Leave Portland 9:25 a. m., Eastern Daylight Time, Monday; arrive Rochester, N. H., 10:55 a. m.; arrive Nashua, N. H., 1:26; arrive Springfield, Mass. 4:26 p. m.; arrive Pittsfield, Mass. 6:55 p. m.; arrive Albany, N. Y., 9:10 p. m.; arrive Schenectady, N. Y., 9:43 p. m.; arrive Utica, N. Y., 12:21 p. m.; arrive Syracuse, N. Y., 10:36 p. m.; arrive Chicago, 8:10 a. m., C. S. T., Tuesday.

The stop at Chicago will be only for railroad operating purposes. The governor will not leave the train, but will immediately start on his swing through Illinois.

While in Chicago, Governor Landon will take lunch with George H. Harding, III., is Republican national committeeman, and leaders of the national and Illinois G. O. P. campaigns. No speech by the governor at Chicago this trip was scheduled.

The itinerary going East from Chicago was announced as follows:

Arrive Gary, Ind., 2:33 p. m.; arrive Valparaiso, 3:50 p. m., arrive Plymouth, 5:31 p. m., arrive Fort Wayne, 8:30 p. m., C. S. T.; arrive Manhattan Transfer, N. J., 8:15 a. m., Saturday, E. D. T.; arrive Stamford, Ct., 10:54 a. m.; arrive Bridgeport, 10:25 a. m.; arrive New Haven 11:34 a. m.; arrive New London, 11:59 a. m.; arrive Worcester, Mass., 2 p. m.; arrive Sterling Junction, 2:26 p. m.; arrive Lowell, 3:28 p. m.; arrive Lawrence 4:03 p. m.; arrive Dover, N. H., 4:06; arrive Kennebunk, Me., 5:40 p. m.; arrive Portland, Me., 6:23 p. m.

Governor Landon will deliver his address at Portland at 9 p. m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time. It will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company's basic red network supplemented by Station WINS, Cincinnati; WOOD, Grand Rapids; KTAR, Phoenix; KVOO, Tulsa. Northwest network (Milwaukee, Madison, Minneapolis, Duluth, Fargo, and Bismarck); Red Mountain network (Denver, Salt Lake City); North Mountain network (Butte, Billings); Southeast network (Richmond, Norfolk, Raleigh, Charlotte, Asheville, Columbia, Jacksonville, Tampa, Miami); Pacific and Network (San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, Spokane).

The Republican standard-bearer will stay in Portland over Sunday. He will be a guest at the home of Senator Frederick Hale.

New England Bound

Here's an excellent informal portrait of Governor Alfred M. Landon, taken at the Kansas State Capitol, as the G. O. P. presidential nominee completed plans for his northeast campaign tour to climax Maine's election contest.

STATE LEADERS MAP WELCOME TO LANDON

Republican leaders in 12 Massachusetts cities and towns today made elaborate preparations toward rousing welcomes for the special train bearing Governor Alfred M. Landon, due here tomorrow.

It is possible that the itinerary might be increased because of the ceaseless barrage of added pleas being received in Topeka today.

The Republican presidential nominee was to leave the Union Station in Chicago at 2 p. m. today to speed eastward.

The special train will arrive in Stamford, Ct., at 10:54 a. m. tomorrow morning, its first appearance in a New England state.

WORCESTER AT 2 P. M.

At two p. m., Governor Landon will make a rear platform appearance in Worcester, where he will be greeted by Republican nominees for the state ticket and a crowd expected to number more than 10,000.

Special arrangements have been made to have the train run through to Lincoln Square, Worcester, where a greater crowd of people will be allowed to view the presidential nominee.

In Lowell, 10,000 persons are expected to greet the Kansas governor when he makes a rear-platform address from the special train in the depot.

LAWRENCE AT 4:03

At Lawrence the special pulls in at 4:03. Sound trucks will tour the streets of the city announcing the arrival of the Republican nominee for president. From indications at this time a crowd of some 10 to 15 thousand are expected to jam the terminal.

Time for the arrival of the train at Haverhill has not been set as yet. "Republican leaders have made arrangements for the special to continue on to Atkinson Junction just beyond the city limits and adjacent to Legion Park where a monster Republican rally will be in progress.

HAIGIS TO GREET KANSAN

Republican gubernatorial candidate John W. Haigis will lead the Republican state ticket in greeting the governor. More than 25,000 persons are expected to greet the train.

From the intense interest exhibited by people all over this state and New England, Republican leaders today worked feverishly to complete plans for the reception and toward the hope that other stops might be added to the itinerary so that all will be satisfied.

Curley Scores Coolidge For Greenwood Support

An appeal by Senator Marcus A. Coolidge for support for the candidacy of his son-in-law, Mayor Robert E. Greenwood of Fitchburg, for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in next Tuesday primary, today drew the fire of Governor Curley at the noon-day rotunda rally in Newspaper Row.

"As far as I am personally concerned," the Governor declared, in predicting his own nomination for the senate, "I rejoiced to see that Marcus Coolidge had recovered his voice after losing it for the past six years."

If it had not been for his own trips to Washington, the Governor declared, "we might still be looking for those bridges" in the Connecticut and Merrimac valleys.

"ROYAL ACCESSION"

Again addressing himself to the junior Senator, the Governor drew Coolidge's attention to the spot marking the site of the Boston Massacre on State street, which he said, was the first protest against the "right of royal accession."

"You have a perfect right to have your son-in-law take your place, but that is the English view and not the American one. The mere fact that your son-in-law wants a job should not justify you to criticize the right of an American citizen to aspire for the position."

LAUDS AMERICAN DRIVE

Governor Curley praised the campaign of the Boston Evening American against the flooding of American markets with cheap Japanese goods. He declared that he has fought shoulder to shoulder with the Boston Evening American to halt these inroads and stated that 5,000,000 men can be put to work in this way without costing the federal government a dollar.

"I am going down to the Senate to see that this is done," he stated.

An audience of more than 400 filled the forum hall and a detail of police were required to keep traffic lanes open outside the hall which was equipped with loud speakers.

In his opening remarks, the Governor revealed that separate days would be set apart for the various racial groups, for the women of the party, and that it is his purpose to invite the federal departments to send representatives so that the public may be informed of what has been accomplished by the federal administration.

Democrats Spend Over Million in Campaign

Washington, Sept. 11 (INS)—The Democratic national committee received and spent slightly more than a million dollars during the three-month period of June, July and August, according to a report filed with the Clerk of the House today.

The Democratic statement showed: Receipts, $1,081,768.27; disbursements, $1,008,940.65; balance as of Aug. 31, $72,827.62, as compared with a balance of $299,074.49 on June 1.

The Republican national committee reported to the House yesterday that from June 10 to Aug. 31 a total of $2,000,311 had been collected and $1,783,000 disbursed.

The largest individual contributor to the Democratic war chest was disclosed as J. M. Patterson of New York, $20,000.

TEACHER And Gardener ELOPE

'RIVAL' SHOT BRIDEGROOM

Natick, Sept. 11—Parents of 20-year-old Loretta McGrath of Winnemay street, pretty Framingham State Teachers' College graduate of last June, today verified the report she had eloped to Seabrook, N. H., last Saturday with John Bache, 21, Dover gardener.

Bache, employed on the estate of E. W. Grew, was shot in the wrist last July by Miss Marion Courtney, a domestic, who then turned the revolver on herself, inflicting a serious wound.

Miss Courtney is still in Leonard Hall Hospital here, and was apparently unaware today that the man who said "I love" had eloped with another girl.

Police hold a warrant for her arrest charging assault with intent to kill.

"Nothing New"

Parents of the Morrath girl and Mrs. William McGrath are reluctant to comment on the daughter's elopement.

"My daughter has known Bache for three years. It is not anything that has developed since the shooting," was the only comment.

They would not reveal where the couple were spending their honeymoon today. They were notified of the marriage Saturday night by their daughter who phoned them from Portsmouth, N. H.

The girl left her home here Saturday afternoon telling her mother she was going to "visit some friends."

"Real Friend"

The young bride was popular at Framingham State Teachers' College where she was a member of the Thomas A. Kempis and Fine Arts clubs.

Evidence of her popularity was contained in a quotation in the

LORETTA McGRATH

"Dial," 1936 yearbook of the college. Printed beside her photograph, was this:

"Nothing but heaven itself is better than a friend who is really a friend."

When Miss Courtney was taken to the hospital shortly after the shooting, she said she was married to Bache. But that was later denied by the Dover gardener.

Mrs. Hart Starts 6th Jail Day

Mrs. Maybelle B. Hart, 46, of Newland road, Arlington Heights, who preferred to spend six days in jail rather than pay a $1 fine for an auto violation, today started her last 24 hours in East Cambridge jail.

According to jail officials, her determined attitude to finish out her sentence rather than pay the fine still continued.

Her breakfast consisted of eggs, several slices of bread and coffee, articles which she received her duties in the laundry.

She is due to be released tomorrow morning at 8:30.

Wrecked Boat Keeps Passenger-Carrying Tradition

Armed with axes and hatchets, workers examine part of the superstructure of the S. S. Romance, near Winthrop.

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Child's little doll, abandoned when the S. S. Romance was sunk in collision with the S. S. New York, is displayed by Mary Russell of Allston, left, and Frances Dow of Nahant. The girls hoarded part of the floating wreckage of the excursion steamer, this morning, off Winthrop.

YOUTHS SEIZE ROMANCE WRECKAGE

throw us out of here. No officers of the law would do it, as the law is on our side for towing the salvage in. If any outsiders attempt to throw us out, we'll certainly put up a fight.

"Congratulations from the Nahant station came over in a boat and watched us work on this wreckage about an hour. They didn't say anything and we didn't say anything to them. They finally went away.

"If we weren't within our rights, they certainly wouldn't have been bashful about letting us know."

Meanwhile today, some quarters had taken out in the harbor views of the Romance the steamship company's captain, Isabelle Watkins, her chief officer, Alton D. Bunker, Captain C. M. Lyons of the federal steamboat inspection service and Captain H. W. Roberts, the port captain.

10 FATHOMS DEEP

With the superstructure removed by the Revere salvagers, there was little to view except specimens of engineers in according to learn the depth at which the rest of the Romance lies and in what position.

They found the hull was in 10 fathoms—about 100 feet.

Considerable interest has been thrown, meanwhile, around the radio into the crash between the excursion vessel and the Boston to New York steamer New York, shortly after 7 a. m. Wednesday, while the Romance was returning from an all-day excursion to Provincetown and the New York was starting out of Boston for her overnight trip.

The probe, postponed originally for three hours, had just begun yesterday afternoon when inspector orders to adjourn until Monday were received from Washington.

The orders came from Joseph B. Weaver, director of the Federal Bureau of Steamship Service and Inspection.

Two officials from Washington, as well as Secretary of Commerce Roper, will "sit in" at the inquiry Monday but, according to Captain Charles M. Lyons, head of the inquiry board, will have no official part in the hearing.

HEARING ON MONDAY

"These Washington men," said Captain Lyons," who, with Frank B. McLean, make up the local board of inquiry, "are merely coming up here to sit in on the investigation as guests of the Boston office and not in any capacity as investigators or sitting on the trial board."

The hearing, now scheduled for 10 a. m. Monday, is expected to last at least two days and may go longer, depending upon how many passengers who were aboard either boat respond to the board's invitation to be present and give testimony.

KNIGHT STOCK PROBE BEGINS

Inquiry into the past financial and managerial affairs of the $20,000,000 R. H. & R. Knight Corporation, with mills in Pontiac and Providence, R. I., was started today by the Sabath Congressional investigating committee in the Federal Building.

Three trustees of the corporation, Colonel G. Edward Buxton, W. Eugene McGregor and George W. Treat, were questioned by private hearing by William J. Gaynor, special counsel; Leo W. Hoban, chief investigator, and his associate, Lawrence W. Mason.

It was learned that no interest on bonds of the corporation has been paid since the formation of a new company, August 2, 1926.

Boulder Dam To Be Opened By President

Boulder City, Nev., Sept. 11 (AP)—An electric generator at the base of gigantic Boulder Dam was wired to put the Colorado River to work today at the touch of a key by the President in Washington.

The ceremony climaxed more than five years' construction on the federal project, designed to supply water and power to a vast area of the western United States.

A rare spectacle was in prospect in the first test of the complete outlet works of the tall structure. Engineers were set to open twelve 84-inch valves and throw a double cataract 180 feet down to the river in falls 13 feet higher than Niagara.

Canada Denies Ban On Bruno's Widow Due to Husband

Ottawa, Sept. 11 (AP)—Refusal of immigration officials to admit Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, widow of Bruno Hauptmann, to Canada, it was understood today, was based on her inability to produce evidence of American citizenship.

Immigration officials said no report was received from authorities at the border station, Cantic, Que., but declared her exclusion had nothing to do with her husband's execution for the kidnap-slaying of the Lindbergh baby.

If Mrs. Hauptmann entered Canada without proper credentials, it was said, the United States could refuse to readmit her and Canada would face the choice of permitting her to remain or deporting her to Germany.

Mrs. Markham Planning 'Disappearing Act'

This is the last of a series of articles written exclusively for King Features Syndicate, Inc., and the Boston Evening American.

By MRS. BERYL MARKHAM

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

New York, Sept. 11—I thought there was plenty of sheer terror in flying blind most of the way across the Atlantic—19 hours, I think, out of my 20-odd—but the worst thrill in this past week has been in the lift at Rockefeller Centre.

I was warned in advance that I should swallow before that "express elevator," as you so quaintly call it, whisked me up all those 67 —or whatever it is—floors, to the top. But, of course, I forgot it. And I had just made a sinking feeling in the pit of my tummy, such a plop-plopping of the ack ticker (my heart, I mean) as I had when I found I'd left my glasses on the window of my old plane, just a hair hour out from Abingdon!

Well, as I wind up this week away from England I certainly have lived, and jolly well near died off that cloud!

I feel almost as old as those dear old ladies who claim to remember Queen Victoria's coronation. Or your great-great-grandmothers who say that they once danced with Lafayette. But with a good week-end to the countryside, and full institution, the week-end, don't you think?—which I am promising myself from this evening on, I should be—

"Smart as a bobtailer
For a sixteen-hand parade."

As Kipling wrote about the befuddled young officer whose men arise him from demolition.

Well, that shoot-up in the lift as I said, fairly took my breath away, and the restaurant where dear old J. C. Carberry and his wife, June, took us to dine, was simply beyond description. I don't know of any dining place on earth cozy, to see that unparalleled view, but the best lease that had got me down quite a bit was still hanging over the city, and couldn't make out half the landmarks they pointed out to me.

Again, I was flying blind—but my ghastly limit. Yet the view downtown, instead of the one up over the Hudson, was enough to dream about. Not even from the Eiffel Tower in Paris, or from the top of Hampstead Heath in London, do you get such an awe-inspiring sight of a great city.

Then we went to the newsreel cinema to see the polar trek, and by great good luck, after we had been there only about five minutes, what should be flashed on the screen but my trusty old plane, the Messenger! I can't tell you how relieved and surprised I was to learn, with my own eyes, that I won't be difficult to get at, and that it has apparently suffered very little damage.

Out of the awful props is pretty badly bent, I should say, and there's some damage to one of the wheels, but the engine is sound and should take no end of fixing, yet.

I had grand news about the old ship from Colonel Edwards, the commanding officer of the Royal Canadian air force.

He telegraphed me from Port Hawkesbury, Nova Scotia, that he was going up there himself, and would have had on this flight, and the preparation for it, comes from my early liking for the best of our English poets.

No, I'm not a highbrow or a blue stocking, but there are certain verses that stick in your mind when you're young, and that come back to you in crucial times.

As I was taking off over that long stretch of water for that awful night, I think one of the things that bucked me up the most was recalling that grand ballad of Alfred Noyes, in Songs of the Mermaid Tavern." I must have been about eight or nine when I first heard it, and I have never lost it. Let me see how it goes:

"Merchant adventurers, chanting
at the windlass,
Early in the morning we sailed
from Plymouth Sound,
All for Eldorado and the great
new skyline,
All to seek the sunset that never yet was found!
All to stuff the sunset in our old
black galleon,
All to seek new highways and sail the world around . . .
Merchant adventurers, merchant
adventurers,
What shall be your profit in the weight years to be?
'England! England! England!
England!
Glory everlasting and the king-
ship of the sea!"

or drive of 12 hours, the poor man, and no one else could be done about getting her out.

A real gentleman, I call him! Though knowing Canadians as well as I do, I was sure they would help me. We colonial people do sort of stick together, you know.

Of course, I spotted the Empire State Building. I remember Jim the Morning warning me before I took off, Beryl dear, be careful if you fly low over New Yorrucks that ye climb crash into the blasted sky. That will never happen, I assure you. Nor shall I ever use the lift in that towering building, either.

And today there was that luncheon at the Advertising Club, to which I had I came a bit late. You see, we'd been up until it was rather unseen, and I still have that trouble about getting to sleep, and I was literally just out of bed when Harry Bruno and his wife came to drive us downtown.

I wore a new powder blue silk frock with white buttons down the center, and a mulberry colored sweater over it, beige stockings and black shoes.

Two after almost a week of that checked blue shirt and gray slacks, it's a real comfort to become a woman again.

Extends Thanks

When I'm going to see the real New York, ride in your "tube" or underground, and travel on your buses, I'm sure I don't know, but I want to.

Perhaps that will some after this disappearing act I'm going to do up in the country. But I do want to look around and Little Italy and Harlem, and all the queer spots I've been reading about all these years.

I really haven't half begun answering letters and telegrams, and perhaps I'll never catch up with them all.

So right here and now before I sign off, I want to thank everybody who's been so dreadfully kind to me—the press and the photographers (they must think me an awful "dead pan"), and the grand test toddies, and above all the telegraph companies' messenger boys.

Despite the people I've given autographs to—I had to make a rule against that, you know—but there are no ill feelings and not offended and obliged. I couldn't refuse them.

Of the presents that came in today, I much appreciated Eric Sloane's painting of my plane, which is a splendid study of sky and cloud effects and quite accurate as to the machine. And I was grateful, too, for the case of champagne which some firm sent me—but theirs for my friends.

Cocktails and flying don't mix, somehow, and it's only when I'm grounded for a spell, as I am now, that I take one occasionally.

I think whatever inspiration I

Stands on Record

Dorgan Candidate for Court Clerk

REP. THOMAS DORGAN BILLIE DORGAN

Representative Dorgan relaxes from the political campaign by swapping stories with his son, Billie, who is just five. Just a couple of "reg'lar fellers."

Fathered Teachers' Oath; Bitter Foe of Moscow

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Representative Thomas Dorgan, of Dorchester, candidate for clerk of the Suffolk Superior Civil Court, enters the final phase of his campaign today with political observers predicting he will top the field of 12 candidates in the primaries next Tuesday.

Until he opened his campaign, Dorgan was known best as the father of the Teachers' Oath Law, a measure which brought him into national prominence.

While proud of the part he played in bringing about that legislation, Dorgan bases his campaign for promotion on his general record and has devoted much of his time in persuading voters with it.

SPONSORED BILLS

For example, he was sponsor of the bill which required the Boston elevated to place one guard for every two cars on subway and elevated trains, bringing about a restoration of jobs to more than 150 men.

He sponsored resolutions asking Congress to protest against the Nazi persecution of Jews and to take some action to alleviate the sufferings of Catholics in Mexico subjected to persecution by the Communist-tinged government.

A Boston Evening American reporter, calling on Rep. Dorgan at his home on Gwendolyn road, Dorchester, found him frolicking with his five-year-old son, William.

Mrs. Dorgan was a bit surprised to find that a reporter wanted to interview her husband in his home.

"You know," she said, "there is one thing Tom doesn't like. He feels that a politician's private life, as long as it is above reproach, should not be dragged into political campaigns."

STANDS ON RECORD

"That's right," said Dorgan. "I am running for clerk of the Suffolk Superior Civil Court on my record.

"I think that is the American way of seeking advancement. I don't think I should appeal for votes because I'm a good husband or fond father.

"But I will admit my wife inspired me to enter politics and become a lawyer. You know, I worked as a conductor and bus driver for the elevated. I'm still a member of the Carmen's Union.

"The fact I worked hard for the Teachers Oath Law does not mean I think teachers are a suspect class. I felt the law would drive into the open the subtle propagandists of Moscow of whom we have some in our schools.

RESPECTS TEACHERS

"As a class, I regard teachers as the highest type of true Americans. So-called intellectuals are trying to make me out an enemy of teachers. But those who know me will not be deceived."

2-DAY SPEECH TOUR ENDED BY ROOSEVELT

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Aboard Presidential Special En route To Washington, Sept. 11 (INS)—President Roosevelt returned to Washington today from a triumphant two-day tour of Democratic souls which evaporated rain failed to mar, leaving behind him the aggressive campaign pronouncement that the administration had linked the depression—and had done far too without inflicting no other individual liberties as states' rights.

Fresh from a succession of parades, receptions and speeches in North Carolina and Tennessee, the President had another speech before him this afternoon. He is scheduled to address the International power conference, and he had ordered his engagements at the White House curtailed this morning so he might prepare the speech.

WILL AID HARVARD

Unless there is a sudden change in plans Mr. Roosevelt expects to remain in Washington until next Thursday.

He will then journey up to Cambridge, Mass., for Harvard's tercentenary celebration. Harvard, oldest of the nation's institutions of learning, has been planning elaborately for its observance of the event for many months and it is expected that the President will be the principal speaker for most of the day.

It was a delighted White House official asserted today that the country had put the money back in the black" in the last three years. He had the satisfaction of knowing, however, that the two-day [illegible] had failed to [illegible] "grass [illegible] [illegible] which he spoke.

SOUND BEGIN SPEECH

Those who accompanied Roosevelt said he was in excellent humor throughout the entire trip. He stopped to [illegible] and a telephone near [illegible] Charlotte, [illegible] Roosevelt said he said:

"It was an awfully nice greeting, and hope to get back to Charlotte to attend the meeting in a big convention wagon and open the starvation wagon and open [illegible] can hope to a factor in affairs secretly to starvation wage prices.

"I do not have to tell you who live in any of these southern states which have [illegible] in all of them, that the [illegible] ties to entitle on a total wage income of $400 a year is not as much a drag on the prosperity of America as the farm income that seeks to subsist on a yearly cash income of $100.

LAUDS NRA

That is why most thinking people believe that the National Recovery Act is a term of life, accomplished as much for the conservation of property through the establishment of the minimum wage, the shortening of hours and the elimination of child labor as could be put on the statute books of the federal government in the past century.

Four years ago all of its to every part of the United States. Found that without any of the local or state tax collectors, the tax receipts had fallen off to an alarming degree.

The result was that counties and municipalities and states were failing in the future. Their budgets or else were unable to carry out the ordinary and orderly functions of the collection of state and local government.

Schools were being closed, curtailed, terminated. Local roads [illegible] repairs, the borrowing of money for permanent improvements had become impossible. With the federal Government, despite additional new forms of taxes, receipts of revenue in 1932 had been cut in half.

And even when some remnant of value remained which [illegible] levy a tax, the tax payer did not have the wherewithal to make the payment and was beginning to lose the very property which was taxed.

Nation-Wide Poll

Ballot Drift Eyed In Pivotal States

By ARCHIBALD M. CROSSLEY
Director of the National Barometer
(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

New York, Sept. 11—What has been the effect on voter-opinion in the presidential campaign, so far of Governor Landon's initial speeches, in Pennsylvania and Western New York and President Roosevelt's trip through the drouth regions?

Light upon these questions may be expected in his first second week's compilation of statistics of the Crossley Poll, which will be a feature of Sunday's issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser. The latest week's figures were purposely gathered in the period immediately before active campaigning began.

This was planned by the research experts of Crossley, Inc., the nation-wide opinion-surveying organization which is conducting the poll, so that a measure of the effectiveness of the campaigning could later be obtained.

By starting in the concluding days of the "lull before the storm," and taking an accurate census then with the Crossley Poll statisticians undertook to learn whether voters were likely drift toward either candidate, Roosevelt or Landon, could be ascertained week by week.

The first figures showing the Pivotal States and the Roosevelt and Landon percentages in them, compiled last Sunday, were the advanced being located at sea. The second, this Sunday, should show the effect of the drift from the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] speed and to what direction.

MOTHER DELAYS EXECUTION OF DOOMED SON

Wells Wells, Wash., Sept. 11 (AP)—A frantic mother using an airplane to speed her efforts, won at least a few more hours of life today for her son, Lee Hall, 24, but the accused killer of six persons in a robbery appeared doomed to die on the gallows.

Early today, Warden J. M. McCauley announced the hanging originally scheduled to take place soon after midnight, had been postponed until 12 p. m. (E. S. T.) Sept. 17. To be present Mrs. Elizabeth Hall to witness the death cell.

SECOND PLEA WINS

From Seattle, Mrs. Hall was flown by plane last night to Olympia where twice she pleaded with Governor Clarence Martin for a delay.

Failing in her first visit, she pleaded back as she was led away:

"The blood of an innocent man, my son, is on the hands of Governor Martin. Oh, my God."

A second plea brought the governor's word he would see Mrs. Hall, accorded a place for Wells Walla. Previously Warden McCauley had said only a brief visit could be permitted because it violated prison rules.

In announcing the delay the warden said he had acted on his own authority.

TRAPPED BY STORY

Hall was convicted of murdering Eugene Chouvenet, one of six persons found shot, stabbed and beaten to death at Leland's Point March 28, 1934.

Hall, confession of Hall's companion, Mrs. Peggy Paulin, helped large in convicting him.

Hall, informed of the delay in his cell, sighed:

"Thank the warden. He's the whitest man I've ever met."

Parsons is a graduate of Harvard College, Class of 1916 and the Harvard Law School two years later. During the World War he served from 1917 to 1919 as Captain of the 304th Infantry of the American Expeditionary Forces in France. For the past seven years he was been a member of the Massachusetts Senate.

KING EDWARD'S TOUR IS "BUSINESS"

Editor's note: While the world generally has believed, at the behest of British statesmen, that King Edward's tour of Southeastern Europe was just a pleasure jaunt, International News Service is heralding exclusively for the first time the real reason for this unusual "vacation." It's purposes had some of the playtime atmosphere about them; they were grave and vital to the very existence of the British Empire.

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, Sept. 11 (INS)—King Edward VIII has stepped out on his first big task since he came to the throne.

When he was Prince of Wales, he was termed "Britain's traveling salesman."

He has now been out on his most important selling job.

Ostensibly, the visit of His Majesty to Yugo-Slavia, Greece and Turkey has been a vacation cruise.

NOT A VACATION

It has been anything but a vacation.

It is part of a shrewd and determined campaign of British diplomats to save the big link—the Mediterranean—for the empire, International News Service learned exclusively today.

Mussolini has challenged the British for control of the Mediterranean. In his defiance of the British first during the Abyssinian campaign and then withdrew from the League, he has won the first round.

REARMS RAPIDLY

Italy is rearming rapidly at sea and in the air. If attempting to regorge the Balkan region around Albania. The line of Mediterranean nations were hooked together with Britain in a mutual defense pact, demanding during the Abyssinian crisis.

The British foreign office, in an attempt to appease Mussolini, declared this mutual pact was taboo with the dropping of another. It included Britain, Yugo-Slavia, Greece, Turkey and Portugal. (Portugal and Britain have a military alliance based on century-old treaties.)

It was hoped the Duce would be drawn, soon into the Locarno group, wooed away from Germany, and the peace of Europe thereby guaranteed.

Then came the Spanish bombshell. The nation which forms the southern flank of British Gibraltar exploded into internecine strife.

EUROPE INVOLVED

Europe became the battlefield of Fascism versus Communism, with Russia and France sympathizing with the Spanish Leftist government, with Italy and Germany siding with the Fascist rebels.

England is aware as never before as when Mussolini took Abyssinia.

England suspects a straight military alliance between Italy and Germany.

Britain cannot afford to have Italy or Germany in Spanish Morocco or the Canary Islands.

So King Edward announces he has changed the Canary Islands vacation in Cannes due to the troublous conditions in nearby Spain.

Instead, he will cruise to Yugo-Slavia, where racial politics swirl beneath the surface, where they assassinated the late King Alexander, enamored in Marseilles by a Balkan terrorist, where a battalion of Italian troops are closely guarded the visiting monarch.

Then he went to Greece—holding fond regard Anglophile and historical interest.

Then His Majesty went to Turkey, which has just won the right to refortify the Dardanelles, the nation being wooed most particularly by every chancellery in Europe.

Britain needs all three of these nations, for naval and air bases in case.

Quincy Ex-Teacher Sues Over Job Loss

Arthur L. Ballou of Quincy today filed suit for $10,000 in Dedham court charging that Mrs. Beatrice W. Nichols, member of the Quincy school committee, was responsible for him not being reinstated as a teacher in that city.

Ballou charged that Mrs. Nichols at a hearing on the question of his reinstatement following a leave of absence said he did not know how to spell and did not know English.

In December, 1935, Ballou said, he was granted a leave of absence because of injuries and sought reinstatement in June, 1936.

As a result of Mrs. Nichols' alleged action, Ballou stated in his suit, he "suffered great mental anguish and financial loss."

"I'm Edward," Says King

Vienna, Sept. 11 (US)—King Edward, Britain's vacationing monarch, has added to the legend of democracy embellishing his name.

The king acting on an impulse, grabbed a scythe from a farmer in the suburbs and gave him a hand in mowing his grass. Later, he introduced himself to the house porter with the statement:

"My name's Edward, what's yours?"

Quits Senate Race To Support Rival

George W. Stoffels, a Democratic candidate for state senator in the Eighth Suffolk District has withdrawn from the contest. He said he will give his support to Myles A. McDonough, also a candidate.

McDonough is a former officer in the Building Trades Council and one of the founders of the Colman Square Business Men's Association.

Labor Split

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has placed himself at the head of two significant—or ominous—movements.

As the head of the Committee for Industrial Organization—supporting the "industrial union" idea as opposed "craft unions"—he has defied the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

As leader of the Labor-Non-Partisan League, he is supporting President Roosevelt and the New Deal in the national election campaign.

In a series of illuminating articles, of which this is the third, an outstanding authority on radical movements discusses Mr. Lewis and tells who some of his followers are in both of his new ventures.

By HAROLD LORD VARNEY

IF JOHN BROPHY were the only Leftist in the official ranks of the Committee for Industrial Organization, then his reconciliation with John L. Lewis might conceivably be interpreted as a sign of a changed Brophy, rather than of an intransigent Lewis.

Unfortunately, Brophy has familiar company in his softly carpeted, impressionistic furnished C. I. O. offices in the Grant Building in Pittsburgh.

As regional director of the Steel Workers Organization Committee for the Pittsburgh district, Mr. Lewis has selected another graduate of the Left Wing movement in the person of Clinton S. Golden.

Golden's career has brought him even more intimately into the councils of [illegible] Leftism than Brophy's.

For 12 years since 1924 Golden has been with Roger N. Baldwin and Norman Thomas and Benjamin Gitlow ON THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE GARLAND FUND.

This fund, as is commonly known, has distributed more than a million and a half dollars, to subsidize various leftist and revolutionary enterprises in America.

Its control, since its inception in 1922, has been unquestionably in the hands of Roger N. Baldwin and his coterie of Pink and Red sufferers against American capitalism.

Some of the allocations which have been made by the fund during the period of Mr. Golden's directorship, obviously with his approval, are $8670 to the Daily Worker, $2000 to the New Masses, approval, were $6825 to the Daily $6070 to the "National Textile Workers Union" (the Communist dual union rival to the A. F. of L. in the field), $1000 to the A. F. of L. in the Furriers' Joint Board, then a Communist-controlled affiliation for the A. F. of L., $600 to the Workers School conducted by the New York Communist Party, $18,000 to the International Labor Defense, the legal defense bureau of the Communist Party, $20,000 to the Equity Publishing Company, the official publishing house of the I. W. W., $1294 to International Publishers, the official Communist publishing house, etc.

GOLDEN has also been a functionary in other notorious Left Wing ventures.

For several years until the exhaustion of Garland Fund money cut off its support, he was the business manager and field director of Brookwood College, an allegedly trade union school at Katonah, N. Y. SIGNIFICANTLY ENOUGH, JOHN BROPHY WAS A MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS DURING THE SAME PERIOD.

In 1928 the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor found it necessary to adopt a resolution disavowing Brookwood as a seat of radical propaganda, and instructing trade unionists TO WITHDRAW THEIR OFFICIAL SUPPORT.

An investigation which the A. F. of L. had conducted had disclosed that three of the instructors on the Brookwood faculty were LISTED LECTURERS IN THE COMMUNIST WORKERS SCHOOL IN NEW YORK.

The chairman and directing head of Brookwood during the whole period was A. J. Muste, who later launched the Trotsky-ite "American Workers Party" in New York.

ANOTHER familiar name on the C. I. O. staff is that of Adolph Germer. One of the oldest Socialist agitators in America, Germer was the national secretary of the Socialist party in 1917 when the party adopted the famous anti-war resolution at the St. Louis convention. Later he was sentenced to 20 years in prisonment as a war opponent, a sentence which was eventually set aside on appeal. Germer is the regional organizer of the Chicago district.

One of the most active organizers for the C. I. O., whom Mr. Lewis has used in his rubber and automobile drives, is Miss Rose Pesotta.

Miss PESOTTA IS AN OLD-TIME ANARCHIST, A FORMER FACTIONAL PARTICIPANT IN THE FEDERBER CENTER IN NEW YORK, AND AN ASSOCIATE OF EMMA GOLDMAN.

On the Steel Organizing Committee itself three of the seven members are lifelong and active Socialists.

Leo Krzycki, who is playing a leading role in the steel drive, is a member of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party.

Julius Hochman is a member of the Socialist Party and is well known for his Left Wing sentiments in party councils.

Sidney Hillman, while not an official member of the party, and at present a Roosevelt supporter, has never made any concealment of his Socialist convictions.

J. B. S. Haldman, who is supervising the publication of the weekly paper of the S. W. O. C. is a former member of the Communist Party.

Joseph D. Cannon, one of the field organizers, is a veteran Socialist who was identified with many of the extreme activities of the party during the war period.

THAT Mr. Lewis, after a lifetime of stern opposition to Socialism and Communism, has now chosen to surround himself with such a battery of hard-boiled revolutionists is an augury of what may be ahead for the C. I. O.

Perhaps Mr. Benjamin Stolberg, the Communist journalist, has hit upon the true explanation in the eulogy of Lewis which he recently published in the NATION.

"When Lewis realized," he wrote, "that all victories are pyrrhic unless they are backed by power, he moved to the left—rapidly since 1935—until today he stands at the head of an awakening labor movement."

If Mr. Stolberg is correct in his diagnosis, then we have here a social event which may be thunderous in its historic implications.

(Another article in this series by Harold Lord Varney will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Jewish Congress

Need to Present Demands Told

This is one of a series of articles by recognized Jewish leaders on the plans for a World Jewish Congress. Similar articles will be carried daily in the Boston Evening American.

By ATTY. SAMUEL KALESKY
President of American Jewish Congress, New England District.

In the call issued by the American Jewish Congress to the Jews of America to participate in the World Jewish Congress the purpose therefor was clearly defined as follows:

"It becomes imperatively necessary for the Jewish people with dignity, vigor and determination to present their demands for the recognition of their inalienable rights, their claim for justice and equality, to the enlightened public opinion of the world; to unite in defense of their rights and to endeavor, through cooperative efforts, to readjust and reconstruct Jewish life within the economic structures of the nations of which they are a part."

It is of the greatest importance to renew and strengthen the international representation of the whole Jewish people for the defense of their rights.

In order that such a representation may be once more established with authority and with the sanction of the whole Jewish people various important Jewish and organizations including the American Jewish Congress, have decided that the time was come for the summoning of the World Jewish Congress.

A great deal of time has been lost in the preparations for such an all-inclusive Congress and in paving the way to unity of action. But the grave situation that has developed in Jewish life, especially since the passing of the Nuremberg laws in Germany, the intensification of the policy of economic discrimination against the Jews of Poland and the spread of the spirit of anti-Semitism throughout Europe, make the calling of an emergency World Jewish Congress an imperative necessity of the moment.

Congress' Scope

The scope of the Congress was indicated as follows:

"First: It is proposed to have submitted at the World Jewish Congress a comprehensive review of the political status of the Jews the world over, and the proposal is to be made that an executive body be set up, representative of the organized Jewries of the world, for the defense of the civil, political and economic rights of the Jews.

"Second: It is proposed to have submitted to the World Jewish Congress a review of the economic conditions under which the Jews throughout the world live and subsist, and the proposal is to be made for the setting up of an economic institute to gather the facts with regard to the economic life of the Jewish people, and to co-operate in the reconstruction of the economic life of Jews in any country in which their existence is threatened through discrimination and inequality.

"Third: It is proposed to consider the problem of Jewish emigration in all its phases, through a review to be submitted of all Jewish activities in connection with Jewish wanderings, and it is proposed to set up an institute for the regulation and coordination of all Jewish immigration agencies."

While at all times it is necessary to provide for the permanent body and in order to do so relief organizations must function and those who have should give to those who have not, and the bodily suffering of our fellow men must be alleviated, yet there is something that transcends far beyond the necessity of relief work and that is the preservation of the human soul and the preservation of the human race to the end that the future of a persecuted people may be safeguarded.

Wherever and whenever was the gathering of the eminent basis of peace to be condemned? How long must it be the unification of forces to fight the foes of humanity by peaceful methods been abjured? No better exemplification of the doctrine of Union there is strength" could be found in this dire hour of need in Israel than a united Jewry pleading for equal justice and the right to live like every other of God's creatures.

Exchange Views

"Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men." Love thy neighbor as thyself" and the Golden Rule are lofty incitements to be recognized in this troubled world of today, and can not those whose hearts beat for the suffering of their fellow men gather hand in hand and there and be the sword, not to battle but to assemble for counsel with each other to the end that this world may be a better place to live in?

Those who were and are the greatest opponents to the calling of a World Jewish Congress present the basis for their reasons, "What can it accomplish? Was anything ever accomplished without making the necessary sacrifices? Who are those great men in Israel who can read the future and who say abundance of good will can be attained thereby?

Would anything in this world be accomplished if there had not been at least born the beginning that would idly by and see our fellow men persecuted and the children of today become the paupers of tomorrow, without at least making a united effort to try to solve these problems which mean the future of Israel?

Whether it is right or wrong to ask for justice and the opportunity to live as a human being the same as God intended every human being should have the right to live?

Whither shall they go? Is the problem of the Jew solved only by taking them out of Germany? What then of Poland, of Rumania and other countries, and the gates of practically every land but Palestine closed, what then shall be our duty? We, who are here in this great land of America with its opportunities that only the free institutions of our country afford to those of all races and creeds can appreciate what has been our proud blessing and good fortune, and what is not unmindful of our duty to the future of our people in every part of the world.

SAWYER CALLS FOR RED BATTLE

Expressing horror over the crucifying of clergy and slaughtering of nuns by the "Reds" of Spain, Reverend Roland D. Sawyer, pastor of the Ware Congregationalist Church, today appealed to the clergy and laymen of all sects, friends of religion and lovers of country, "to close up the ranks and show the world that such a menace as the Red movement in Spain can have no footing in this country."

Babe Ruth Repays Baseball's Silent Treatment in Kind

We [illegible] over the coming World Series for [illegible] because he has business sense enough not to [illegible] for a personal gripe. But, [illegible] last spring at St. Petersburg when he told me, "I [illegible] on the scene. I'm out of it now, or rather baseball [illegible] me out," his policy is to withdraw the public eye [illegible] personality and keep himself aloof.

ASKED FOR BOOST; GOT THE LEG

BABE RECENTLY TOLD A BUSINESS INTIMATE that, after reaping the fruits of his national popularity, baseball had cast him off. He felt that, through his industry and aloofness to mature as a great hitter at a time when the baseball magnates were rocked by the Black Sox scandal, he had conferred a boon on baseball. His presence had attracted millions of customers at the gate and, practically unassisted, had built Col. Jake Ruppert's brewery fortune on personal profit. He had, he said, been unstinting of his time for charities, poised for hours on end autographing baseballs and scrap paper for [illegible] multitude. He had handled the papers [illegible] for [illegible] years.

SEEKING SOMETHING SENSATIONAL, a national weekly magazine recently offered Babe $5000 to [illegible] again, to be told in print. But he filed the offer [illegible] possible future accepting because he was still hopeful that one of the impoverished clubs, like Brooklyn, would [illegible] to him to become its manager over the winter. [illegible] company [illegible] Hibbetts Judd, seems a [illegible]

BASEBALL PAID BABE'S BILL

AS ONE WHO WOULD WELCOME OLD Mr. Baseball back to the sport pages I do not feel that the game owes him further debt. He came up as nobody from nowhere with a pocketfull of nothing, and by his own guts and some happy accidents, became rich, reckless, extravagant, successful and beloved.

HE MADE $1,500,000

THIS CHANGE HAD A GREAT DEAL to do with transforming the Babe into one of the most significant Americans of his day. The enlivened ball, served up under restraint and met by the full arc of his swing, transformed baseball's [illegible] into home runs. Babe's era was on and his income was stepped up by gradual stages to $85,000 before fluttering down again, also by easy stages, to the $46,000 he was paid in his last year with the Yankees.

How the Worm Has Turned

The Magic Eye recorded some excellent action as Dick Bartell, the Giant shortstop, started sprinting for home on Joe Moore's single in the 6th inning. Cincinnati [illegible] Lombardi gets the ball in ample time and starts [illegible] the runner about three feet from the plate. It still has the dust and slides through in an obscuring cloud, but the out is quite apparent and is so called by the umpire. Pitcher Lyons of Cincinnati (21) is backing up the throw to the plate.

WEIR Looms as 'FIND'

ONLY 3 MONTHS OUT OF COLLEGE

By JOE CASHMAN

[illegible] chapter of what promises to be [illegible] pitching saga of the year was written when the Indians and Yanks [illegible] game series with the Indians [illegible] Pilots at the Hub [illegible].

Young Hal Weir was [illegible] the home club and [illegible] a performance worthy [illegible] Labor Day [illegible] Dodgers. He must be [illegible] the year's prize [illegible].

So far the career of [illegible] Melrose and hopes next [illegible] story that sounds [illegible] ball.

Stepping up [illegible] the University [illegible] in June he was [illegible] as the proverbial [illegible] and as was [illegible] expected, signed [illegible] away from the big [illegible] kids.

With a month [illegible] he was showing enough to be [illegible] with real [illegible] chance.

Two finish up [illegible] as he was [illegible] a good game [illegible] as a starter in an emergency. He [illegible] such starts.

The last, on Labor Day, saw [illegible] ignore the deep [illegible] Van Lingle Mungo [illegible] and go on decisively [illegible] Dodger star. Mungo [illegible] with four hits [illegible] win 5 to 1.

And today finds [illegible] ed in pitching [illegible]

WES FERRELL TO OPPOSE BROWNS

By JOE CASHMAN

Billy Werber, temperamental Red Sox infielder, will be neither fined nor suspended for his run-in with Manager Joe Cronin during the Red Sox-White Sox game in Chicago last Wednesday.

In a [illegible] Werber [illegible] Cronin [illegible] Fenway [illegible] Braves [illegible] and [illegible] Werber [illegible] [illegible] Boston [illegible].

"The affair was too trivial [illegible] warrant me taking any action against Werber," stated Hemsley [illegible] for the remainder of that game," he declared.

"It was merely one of those flare ups that frequently occur on every club when a game is tight and nerves are frayed.

"I didn't think Werber ran as fast as he could on a certain play and I told him so. He told me if I didn't like the way he played I could play somebody else. So I benched him and placed Heath McBride on second base.

"We both lost our tempers for the moment. That's all there was to it. I've forgotten it and so has Bill. Everything is O. K. again. Bill has given me his best all season and I know he'll continue to do so.

"I determined to see more of Dunn, Lyn in the outfield. To do so while Eric McNair and Jack Burns are on the injured list, I'll have to pass short, put McBride at second and send Werber to third.

HORTON SMITH shows three natural poses in driving part of the illustrated lesson he will give during the New England Golf Carnival at Belmont Springs on October 2-3. Picture No. 1 shows the proper stance and address for Horton Smith. The club is held lightly in the FINGERS and not in the PALM of the hands. The back of the left hand must be up and the wrist firm. Picture No. 2 shows the correct driving stance. Smith addresses the ball with the heel of the club and not the toe as does Bobby Jones. Feet and arms are natural, free from tension. Picture No. 3 shows the swing. Smith's backswing is comparatively short. The left knee points in towards the right one, instead of towards the ball. The hips rotate slightly. The left arm takes the position shown in photo instead of being straight ahead.

Landon on Labor

Split in Union Ranks Imperils Wages And Hours, Governor Says

I, FOR ONE, am sorry to see the recent split in the ranks of labor, and hope that it will be speedily healed.

The great gains made by labor through its organizations are in danger so long as this division exists.

Here again, unity is requisite for progress and achievement.

The prodding by labor unions in the past has frequently awakened apathetic management to the need for improving conditions.

All labor will be in a stronger position if it eliminates the cut-throat competition of cheap labor in the sweatshops.

Low living standards for some of our people in this competitive age are a continuing threat to the standards of workers in other sections more fortunately situated.

It is to be hoped that organized labor may continue its part in the struggle for higher living standards.

And to be really effective it must remain united.

From Governor Alfred M. Landon's speech at Wichita, Kansas, Sept. 7, 1936.

SKETCHED: Smart and alluring is this black suede or black kid T strap, with patent leather stripping and silver piping.

Such shoes weaken the two arches, pull at tendons, squeeze nerves and muscles, cause displacement of the 26 little bones in the foot. And foot trouble may well affect your entire health. Certainly no woman can look her best, can even wear her clothes smartly, if her posture is ruined by wrong shoes.

WALSH-ARCH SHOES co-operate with nature . . . bring merciful relief to foot sufferers. Exclusive features insure unequalled comfort—features such as "Vita Sole," which prevents "burning of the feet"; "Cameron Construction," making the shoe as flexible as a glove; The "Walsh Tailored-Arch," insuring perfect fit for your individual arch.

BUILDING BOOM FORECAST

The United States will know the greatest building boom in its history during the next three to five years and that the level of 1929 prosperity would soon be reached, Dr. David Friday, economist, told members of the Savings Bank Association of Massachusetts, now in convention at the New Ocean House, Swampscott.

Baer Won't Vote For Professor

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Dear Diary—I hope the next time my cracked professor friend goes through college he will be in a bottle. He made a date with me on the corner, but it wasn't the one which prospers. He is just around.

Little Booklet—Well, I am rapping that guy like a spiritualist's table. I was stood up like a was dummy in a window. I was thirstier than a watering in the south districts and hungrier than a toothless cannibal. You can bet I will vote against the professor on November 3d, for I hate a memory like an elephant for peanuts like him.

Little Memorandum—The professor just sent me a telegram of hope and cheer. As usual, he reversed the charges.

Haverhill Mayor Boom For Peever

Haverhill, Sept. 11—Arthur Peever, president of the Haverhill Pentucket Baseball League, is being urged in turn his political hat into the Mayoralty contest, it was learned today.

In an interview with a Merrimack Valley Edition reporter of the Boston Evening American, the baseball league head admitted that he is giving the matter serious consideration.

"I will make a definite decision after the primary elections next Tuesday," he said.

Peever's entrance into the mayoralty contest would be a severe blow to the cause of the reelection fight of the incumbent, Mayor George E. Dalrymple.

It is felt that Mayor Dalrymple's campaign was one of Mayor Dalrymple's staunchest supporters, but gossip has it is in circulation that a rift has arisen between the two.

Neither Mayor Dalrymple or Peever will admit that a breach has occurred. However if the baseball magnate decides to enter the race in opposition to Mayor Dalrymple it will be a "positive" indication that the two have reached a parting in regard to municipal matters.

Although Mayor Dalrymple has not definitely announced his candidacy for a third successive term, it is generally believed he will be in the thick of the Mayoralty contest in November.

FUTURE OUTLINE TO BE PRESENTED

SAVANT ON AIR AT HARVARD

A peek at the past and the future!

That's what you're offered by Madame Mystique, your favorite clairvoyant, when she polishes up her crystal globe and goes gallivanting off into the infinite.

Yet when Harvard Tercentenary Conference scientists, who sniff at Madame Mystique and her profession, are missing you almost the same offer today.

If it's the past which interests you, you can be taken back there, in spirit, by modern scholars who are world authorities on the life and culture of the middle ages.

And, as for the future, you can get a good view of that, if you'll listen to Lecturer Frank Baldwin Jewett, who speaks today from Harvard, over a short wave radio station WIXAL.

His subject is "Social Implications of Scientific Research in Electrical Communications" — and he'll outline for you what the coming century may bring when television and radio telephony link you with friends and relatives across continents and seas and allow you to see and hear world events as they occur.

The lectures on the Middle Ages were to go on the air over WIXAL at 9:30 a. m. today. At 3:30 p. m. through the same station, Hu Shih, Masaharu Anesaki and Paul Pelliot speak on "East and West." And Professor Jewett's broadcast is at 4:30 p. m.

Joppa WPA Coaches Start; Bill Curb Hits Squad

Newburyport, Sept. 11 "I have no favorites and will pick players according to the ability they show. Speed is necessary, as well as willingness. We've got a tough schedule ahead and I will not tolerate any monkeyshines as far as training and discipline on the field go."

That was a statement made by Coach Johnny Donovan, who recently found no fat duties here and is handling a squad of 40 high school gridmen.

Today, with the WPA paying their salaries, Dennis Golanian, a former captain, and Jim Lyons, who played at Holy Cross, started work as assistants to Coach Donovan. Eddie Kelley, former Boston College captain, and several of his friends who have volunteered to aid the coach in preliminary workouts, will quit at the end of the week.

MORE MAY RETIRE

Developments in the past 24 hours in the controversy being waged over the $50 maximum doctor's bills clause for injured players, including the resignation of Stanley Rosina, a substitute halfback last year. Parental objections, said to be prompted by the fact that the school Athletic Council will not pay bills for injuries amounting to more than $50, reported as the reason Jim quit the squad.

Several others, including some regulars, are still out for the team but they will not be allowed to play against Salem until their parents sign cards bearing the $50-clause.

The status of Alex Tropilo, who has been working out as quarterback is uncertain. Last year his family moved to Exeter. This term he resumed his residence here, with his parents remaining in Exeter. It is said there is a rule against this and until it is settled he cannot play. His loss would be felt.

Coach Donovan has minced no words in telling the players what he expects of them. He said he expects a lot but will not force a player to continue when he showed signs of weariness.

"If you get tired, tell the captain so and you will be relieved. We'd rather have you rest a while than be in there doing no good," he said.

HARPS ON SPEED

Much time is being spent in preseason workouts on passing and kicking. Another noticeable thing this year is the time spent in showing backfield men how to block. Coach Donovan says he must depend upon speed, and the fastest players will win out.

This year the school team will use the Warner single wingback formations. Coach Donovan has introduced a new form of huddle, the backs and linemen going into separate huddles. It will be seen for the first time against Salem when the locals dedicate the improved Bertram Field in that town, September 19.

New Union Heads Take Office

Newburyport, Sept. 11—William B. Mahan of Lynn, general shoe union organizer, installed officers of the merged locals, 39 and 39A at the union hall, Hale's court tonight. He was assisted by James Mitchell of Lynn, secretary-treasurer and William Thornton of Lynn, president of the joint council of that city.

The officers installed were:

President, Tom Tales; vice-president, Mrs. Bertha Plante; secretary-treasurer, Ernest Carroll; agent for cutters and stitchers, Josie Bandell; agent for lasters and packers, Frank Noel; collector and janitor, Leslie Adams.

John L. Ring, formerly of Haverhill, agent for several years, did not seek re-election. The two local unions recently combined.

Hit-Run Suspect Held in Lowell

Lowell, Sept. 11—Henry E. Roberts of 19 Green street, Concord, N. H., is held at Lowell police station for officers of Nashua, N. H., where he is wanted on charges of leaving the scene of an accident without making himself known.

Roberts was arrested late last night by Patrolman John J. Creamer after the Nashua police broadcast a request for his apprehension. He was booked here on charge of drunkenness and was to be arraigned in district court here this morning.

According to Nashua police, Roberts' car struck a machine operated by Gladys J. Edmistone of Manchester, N. H. No one was injured.

"GIVE ME YOUR HEART"

A NEW SERIAL

By Lewis Allen Browne

A COSMOPOLITAN PRODUCTION TO BE RELEASED SOON BY WARNER BROTHERS

CHAPTER 10

"The devil you say!" Lord Edward Farrington exclaimed when Tubbs informed him that Linda Warren was to beat his son a child. "Does Robert know—of course, the girl would run to him at once."

"I doubt if she would have gone to him at all about it, sir. Linda is a grand and wonderful girl. She places no blame on Robert, I have just told Robert and he has gone to see her."

The elder Lord Farrington became alarmed upon hearing this.

"He canot put Rosamond aside—we Farringtons are not that sort. If he tries it, I'll— I'll—"

"Robert wouldn't think of it, sir. He loves Rosamond. And as for Linda—I am sure she wouldn't hear of it."

"Sir? Well, on my word, Tubbs, she is a remarkable girl. Of course we'll send her away—provide for her."

"I wonder, sir, if Lady Farrington knew, how she would—what effect it would have on her?"

"Break her heart. No need for Rosamond to know. She has enough of a cross to bear now, knowing that she can present Robert with no heir."

"She strikes me as a woman of unusual intelligence and good sense. If—er—it could be arranged so that Linda's child would be regarded as her own, I thought—"

"By god, Tubbs!"

Lord Farrington leaped up again and began to pace the room.

"Look here, Tubbs," he said, turning to him, "you came to me with that idea in mind. Does this Warren girl agree to it?"

"Good heavens, sir, I haven't dared suggest it. I did tell her that I had a plan that might work out, but I gave her no hint of it."

"Did you suggest it to Robert?"

"No, sir, I thought it best to see you first. Naturally Robert is greatly upset at this moment."

"Right, Tubbs, you have a head on your. Look here, I'll have to think this over. If it could be arranged—if only it could be arranged! Rather be shot than have to tell poor Rosamond."

"Robert is the one to tell her."

"Yes, yes—that's true. Imagine Oliver Warren's girl—I can scarcely believe it."

"She fell madly in love with Robert, almost on sight. Robert became infatuated with her. Any man would. Linda knew about Rosamond—that is why she refuses to place any blame on Robert. She says that she was a fool, that she loved too well, and adds in the same breath that she had her eyes open all the time and takes all the blame."

"What a girl! I have seen her a few times in the village, don't think she saw me. Well, I'll sleep on it, have a talk with Robert. By god, Tubbs—if it could be arranged—if we could get poor Rosamond to agree to the plan—"

Lord Farrington left the sentence to go on. He paused a drink for Tubbs and for himself.

They lifted their glasses, made no audible toast, and after the drink Tubbs said, "Good word to me if you want me, sir."

They shook hands and Tubbs departed. He heard Robert driving up the hill to the castle in time to step back of the hawthorn hedge until he passed.

Tubbs drove over to the Warren cottage the next morning and took Linda out in his little car. He half expected Linda to reproach him for going to Robert, but she did not—she seemed to be in better spirits—more of mind than in the previous day. When they were out in the country Linda said:

"Did going to Robert about it include part of your plans, Tubbs?"

"Yes, in a way. I suppose you are terribly angry at me."

"No. I wouldn't be much of a man if he wasn't loyal to her. You didn't suggest—or—but of course you didn't."

"That he divorce her? What a terrible thing to think of me, Linda. Robert hadn't time to tell me how much he loved his wife before I assured him that she was never to know. I'm not going to wait until Aunt Esther learns about this and sets me out into the street. Robert is going to provide funds. I think I shall go to America. I was there a few years, when I was about sixteen, and father was working on some old scripts at Harvard."

"America, eh? Long way off, Linda."

"So much the better."

"Perhaps I'm not sure."

"So, old darling, you have no need to strain your gigantic brain with whatever plans for me you have been formulating."

"We shall see, my dear girl."

"Where are you now, Tubbs?"

"Why, I'm on my way to Robert's cottage. There he can be found a message for him from Lord Farrington. Robert is going to be greatly out and settled up the hill to the castle."

The elder Lord Farrington was pacing the terrace and smoking. He hurried to the gate when Tubbs drove up.

"Thought you'd stay for tea, we'll take a turn about the stables and the kennels," was his greeting.

Tubbs was relieved to see him so cheerful.

They walked to the stable of the dogs, Lord Farrington said:

"You were right, Tubbs," Lord Farrington said. "the girl is quite wonderful. Robert told me all she said."

"Yes, sir. Did you—er—have you decided to take the fish and tell Lady Farrington?"

"She knows."

"What did you say, sir? Already?"

Tubbs actually leaped up from the bench, he was so surprised, and so eager to hear about it.

"Rosamond was wonderful—just how Robert went about it, just what he said and what she said, in effect. I shall never know. Don't want to know. It was a matter between husband and wife. But Rosamond came to me, afterward."

"Yes, sir—"

Glamorous Beret Wins Tag

ROMANTIC as the slashed sleeves of a medieval page boy . . . perhaps even inspired by them . . . this black velvet beret, chosen by the Fashion Congress and modeled by Miss Frances Shea.

Glossy black transparent velvet is adept at promoting the devastating effect. And because of this exotic tendency it should be saved for afternoon or early evening wear. For instance, ensembled for the Fashion Congress it topped a tea-time frock of black velvet lighted with Irish crochet at throat and wrist. Formalizing details of the frock are a cut-out over the shoulders in black and a skirt lengthened to twelve inches above the floor. It's the sort of hat that puts you in fine fettle for anything—from attending the autumn wedding of a man you almost married yourself, to sailing through a pledge tea at the sorority house you've dreamed of making.

For shopping information on the slashed velvet beret, or the frock, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

Delicious NEW Casserole RECIPES

By MARTHA LEE

THE CASSEROLE dinner or meals-in-one we talk so much about during the summer season are a joy all the rest of the year. For they are simple to prepare and so very satisfactory to serve. They seldom require much elaborate kitchen work.

In fact, you have but to toss together a number of good ingredients according to a reliable recipe, tuck them away in a sturdy casserole and pop the dish in the oven to cook and your main course is completed.

In the meantime you can prepare the rest of the dinner leisurely, or leave the kitchen altogether for a bit of relaxation. Casserole dishes offer such a wide range of variety, too. Left-overs can be cleverly disguised, inexpensive cuts of choice meat tenderized and flavored delicacies, and meat substitutes—eggs, macaroni, spaghetti and cheese prepared in clever new one-piece meals all in your casserole.

We are always having requests for them and here are the very newest ones:

"FARMERS' STEAK" CASSEROLE

2 lbs. round steak
½ cup flour
2 tablespoons fat
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 small can gumbo creole soup
1 small can onion soup

Cut the steak, ½ inch thick, into six servings. Pound flour into steak using edge of saucer or steak hammer. Heat fat in a skillet and brown meat in it on both sides. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place in casserole, overlapping slices if necessary. Pour gumbo creole and onion soup into skillet to remove any fat left in the skillet, then pour over meat in casserole. Cover tightly and bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for about 1¼ hours, depending upon tenderness of steak. If sauce around meat becomes thicker than desired, thin with a small amount of hot water. Serve with sauce remaining in casserole.

CORNED BEEF CASSEROLE WITH PREPARED MUSTARD
(Serves 4 to 6)

1 16-ounce can corned beef
2 to 3 cups finely-diced potatoes (¼ inch dice)
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 cup milk

Flake the corned beef finely. Place corned beef and potatoes in alternate layers in buttered casserole, sprinkling with salt and pepper to taste. Blend mustard and milk and pour over top. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for one hour. Uncover and continue baking 20 minutes.

BAKED MACARONI AND HAM LOAF
(Serves 4)

1 17-ounce cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese
1 cup finely chopped or ground ham
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites

Combine macaroni, ham and a dash of pepper. Mix thoroughly, separating macaroni into small pieces. Beat egg yolks until thick, then add. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a small well greased casserole and place casserole in pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 45 minutes or until firm in center.

INDIVIDUAL SPAGHETTI CASSEROLES

2 lbs. lean pork or veal
3 to 4 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 large cans cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce
½ cup fine toasted crumbs
¼ cup grated American cheese

Cut meat into small cubes or grind it coarsely. Fry slowly in butter until tender and well browned. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place spaghetti in individual casseroles, having each about 1/3 full. Pre-spaghetti up around sides of casserole and fill centers with meat. Cover meat with a thin layer of spaghetti. Combine crumbs and cheese and sprinkle over top. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for 25 minutes. Serve very hot.

HAM AND MACARONI CASSEROLE
(Serves 4)

1 17-ounce can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese.
1 cup ground cooked ham.
½ cup crumbs.
1 tablespoon butter.

Place macaroni and ham in alternate layers in buttered casserole, having 2 layer each of macaroni and ham and placing a layer of macaroni first in casserole. Mix crumbs and melted butter and sprinkle over top. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 20 minutes, or until well heated through. An excellent method of using left-over ham.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

FALL FROLICS into town . . . activity picks up, and so should your exercise program. Begin with your muscles to recontour your silhouette for tailored clothes. Start off on the right foot and go by the rules of the exercise game . . .

Exercise when you please, but not as you please. You may take your daily dozen morning, noon or night, as long as you go by the rules.

Early morning exercise is fine for those who like it—except the thin, tense individual, who is already too highly geared, for exercise is a stimulant. For this reason, a brisk workout before retiring may wake you up and put you out of the mood for sleep. However, physical activity during the day is just what a great many people need to make them sleep, for that hugabout, insomnia, is frequently a product of overactivity of the mind, coupled with inactivity of the muscles. Rational exercise is your best assurance of sound slumber.

Exercise Rules

Another time not to exercise is just after meals. Wait at least an hour after eating before you engage in vigorous exercise. Much exertion draws the blood away from the organs and interferes with digestion.

Wear as little clothing as possible, with no dangling straps or tight garments to hamper movements. Every motion you make should be free and easy. You will find, too, that you get more enjoyment out of exercise in a gym suit or in a comfortably fitting swim suit.

If you dislike to exercise in a cold room, don't do it. The room may be as warm as you wish, as long as it is well-ventilated. The important thing is to have plenty of fresh air to tone the superficial muscles and to supply the oxygen demanded by working muscles.

Take your exercise on a hard, non-yielding surface such as a rug or mat spread on the floor. Not only does a soft surface offer no resistance to your muscles, but to lying-down exercises on a soft surface the spine assumes a faulty posture.

Although all jumping and jarring movements should be avoided, mild exercise may be continued through the menstrual period. It is much easier—as you may have learned—to keep on with exercise than to resume it after an interruption. There is no health prohibition of exercise at this time.

Too long or too vigorous exercise at the beginning of your program may bring it to an untimely end. Begin with just five minutes of exercise a day if you are out of form, and gradually work into twenty minutes.

If you are interested in recontouring your silhouette for autumn, you can do it by adopting an exercise program made up of regularity, effort and precision. Send for the beginning exercises, "General Exercises—To Keep You Trim and Fit as a Fiddle," enclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Achieving Free Finesse

Few plays can make a defender feel as foolish as the ones that present declarer with the gift of a "free" finesse.

At times, particularly when making a blind opening lead, it is difficult to avoid this horror; on most occasions, however, careful attention to the bidding will save the day.

There was no excuse whatever for West in today's hand.

East dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:
East	South	West	North
1 ♡	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

West was tempted to double the four spade bid on his two defensive tricks but restrained himself, with the thought that South must have quite a freak to be able to bid it.

West opened the King of diamonds and East naturally followed suit with the deuce, since from his play there was no possible reason for a diamond continuation. West, eager to follow declarer but without the wit to figure out the proper shift to make now led his top heart.

Declarer ruffed as he put up dummy's Queen and ruffed poor East's Ace with the three of trumps. The King and a low spade put dummy on the lead for the cashing of the heart King, upon which declarer discarded a losing club. Booth returned to his hand by ruffing a heart with an honor, drew the remaining trumps, and then conceded one diamond and one club.

Although West could not be sure that the declarer was out of hearts, there was no earthly reason to lead a heart while dummy retained the spade Ace entry.

We have seen what happened when South ruffed the heart lead. Now let us suppose that East had a five card suit and that South had a heart instead of one of his losing clubs. The same catastrophe would have ensued from West's short-sightedness.

Dummy's heart trick would have been established before declarer's club Ace was knocked out and, even though declarer followed to the first heart play, he would then not have to lose any club trick whatsoever.

Very obviously, West should have shifted to a club—not to a heart, for there would have been no earthly way for declarer to have avoided the loss of two diamond and two club tricks.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Should Boy Condemn Girl Who Likes Smoking And Drinking?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Should a man condemn a girl for smoking and drinking?

That is the question he asks me this Chelsea boy, very much in love with the young lady he met recently at a dance.

She smoked, not one but many cigarettes. Yes, she even takes a drink, occasionally. And she's not averse to petting, if she likes the boy that wants to pet.

And so this Chelsea boy, torn between his love for the girl and the dire warnings of parents, writes me this interesting letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Four weeks ago, at a dance, I had the good fortune to meet (she would a most charming young woman—at least that's what I think. Perhaps it was love at first sight, for during our first dance I asked her to ride home with me, and she accepted.

We smoked several cigarettes, had two cocktails at an inn on the way home, even stopped and petted a little while.

She was THE girl for me. I knew this from the start. And the more I know her, the more sure I become.

But my father and mother, old fashioned and unable to see things as I see them, accuse my girl friend of being "fast." As proof for their accusations, they repeat the most unfair tales the neighbors tell about this young woman.

I wouldn't dare to tell you even one of them, and I'm sure you wouldn't print them if I did. I shall not say anything to her, but I'd like to decide for things my parents are saying.

This problem of mine is familiar to you, I presume. This is why I seek your advice. Shall I follow the cry of my heart? Or shall I bow to the wishes of my father and mother?

"CHELSEA."

MY DEAR BOY:

Drinking and smoking by women is a matter of personal opinion. Some call it delightful, others sinful. Each side holds its own views, and it would be easier to drain the Atlantic Ocean than to change either one.

I know many good women who smoke and, truthfully, I cannot say that any one of them is the worse for liking an occasional cigarette.

Several of my most intimate friends enjoy a cocktail, a drink of beer, and sometimes something stronger. And, though I am personally opposed to liquor, I have a suspicion that these friends will fare just as well in heaven and hell.

The danger of drinking is that few people know when to stop. Numerous cocktails before a period of time are apt to result in an appetite for liquor. Once acquired, the alcoholic habit is an exceedingly difficult one to break.

Therefore, wise young women and wise young men do well to beware of the first drink. The last may not be so pleasant.

From your letter, I assume that the girl you so much admire is not exactly a "shrinking violet." You say she not only drank with you, but petted a little while.

In itself, that is not exactly wrong. Yet I am inclined to call it a bit "forward" for a young woman whose acquaintance with you was only a matter of hours. And there is also the suspicion that if she "fell" for you so quickly she might have done likewise had another boy been in your place.

If I were you, I'd postpone asking this girl to marry you until I know her at least three months.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We were in high school together. No doubt it was "puppy love" then, but it is the real thing now.

Six years ago I had to leave her to take a job in another city, but we've kept up a steady correspondence all these years and have managed to meet during vacations.

Each time we've fallen deeper and deeper in love. This summer she spent her vacation in the same town with me, and we were very happy together.

Should I send for her, or give her an engagement ring first, and wait until I am absolutely certain whether I can take care of her comfortably and properly?

FRANCIS.

DEAR FRANCIS:

Since you have known this girl for six years and still love her, I cannot see that you would be taking a terrible "risk" in asking her to become your wife right now.

Engagement rings are just one of those happy frills connected with marriage. Every young woman wants one, but they are by no means necessary to successful matrimony. I have known many men who made excellent husbands, even though they dispensed with this "frill."

Why not take a trip to this girl's home, ask her out, and "pop the question." I'll bet she says "yes."

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am terribly in love with her, but sometimes she says she doesn't love me at all. Then, again, she is loving. Honestly, I just can't understand her.

First she says she doesn't want to go with any one. Then, a few days later, she tells me she can't help liking me.

What is the matter with her? I don't know what to do with this girl whose affections shift like the winds.

ANTHONY P.

MY DEAR BOY:

You are not alone in your perplexity. Every man from Adam down has thrown up his hands and given up the riddle of the eternal feminine.

Her shifting nature is rather true to type. Sometimes she likes you, and again independence looms as the most desirable of all possessions.

Have patience. In time, most women succumb to the eternal magnetism.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

FATHER AND FAITH PLAY TOGETHER JOYFULLY

CHAPTER 96

I NODDED and smiled an assent to my father's request to try an experiment of amusing the baby, who, patently tired of Mary's efforts to distract her, appeared to be on the verge of wails.

I did not dare to trust my speech, for an undertone of poignant sadness beneath his determined cheerfulness constricted my throat muscles.

The next instant, however, I had to compel my rebellious vocal cords to speech, for he had put a direct question to me.

"Where are the blocks I bought Faith a few weeks ago? I don't see them anywhere. Doesn't Mrs. Hickett approve of them? They are so cleverly made of such extremely light material that they could not possibly hurt her even if they all fell on her at once."

MADGE REASSURES HIM

I was actually glad of the querulous note in his voice, indicating that his grief at removing the baby was for the moment overshadowed by his desire to have a few moments' play with her. I purposely made my reply verbose.

"Of course Katherine approves," I told him. "We both do. The blocks are perfectly wonderful. That's the reason we don't let her have them often. They are so beautiful and expensive, and all she does with them is to bang them on the floor. She can do that with anything, and I didn't want to get the blocks all marked up."

"What utter nonsense!" my father exploded testily. "Suppose she does bang them up! I fancy the Spencer exchequer can stand the strain of more acts of the same kind for an only granddaughter. Where are the blocks?"

"They're in that cabinet on the other side of the room. I'll get them for you."

FATHER GETS BLOCKS

"No, please!" my father said quickly. "I want to get them myself. And don't be surprised at anything I do."

I was glad he had given me the admiration when he, the most dignified man I ever have known, swiftly took off his coat and vest, turned his cravat, and put it to one side. Getting down upon the floor in the same all fours position that was his granddaughter's, he began to scuttle over the floor in the same all fours position that was his granddaughter's, he began to scuttle over the floor with movements grotesquely imitative of Faith's method of locomotion.

Mary opened her lips upon an exclamation, but my frantic gesture silenced her in time, and we both stood silent, watching not my father, but the baby.

For the space of a second she had raised her head and looked at him with wide-open eyes and rose-leaf face screwed up in ludicrous amazement. One thing was certain. His action had banished all idea of temper or tears from her baby mind.

BABY INTERESTED

I realized that my father's action had been deliberately calculated to arouse the baby's interest, and when without paying the slightest attention to her, he raised himself to a kneeling posture, took the blocks from the cabinet and, spilling them out upon the floor, began to pile them rapidly upon each other, I mentally doffed my hat to his knowledge of infant psychology.

The baby was in a sitting posture now, not venturing to touch the blocks herself, but watching his every movement intently. But when, after rapidly building a tower as high as the blocks could compass—a truly magnificent structure—he said, in a conversational tone, "Look! Faith" and, striking a key block, lightly sent the whole structure to the floor with a crash most delightful to baby ears, Faith suddenly laughed aloud and wriggled close to the blocks. Picking one up, she held it out to him confidently.

"You're elected, Grandpa Spencer, Mary, the irrepressible, commented in a low tone. "If she runs true to form, you'll be building those blocks and knocking them down for the next hour."

GRANDFATHER WILLING

"I hope so," my father answered fervently. "I cannot imagine a more delightful way of spending one of my last hours at home."

But Mary's prophecy fell far short in time. For a quarter of an hour, indeed, both baby and grandfather revelled in the sport of building towers and knocking them down again, although Faith soon established full suzerainty over the knocking down process. Then, as suddenly as it had attracted her, the new sport palled, and she pulled herself up by her grandfather's side, and leaning against him, put both tiny hands up to him with an appealing gesture I never had seen her use before.

Hair Curler

POSED BY ELISSA LANDI

Invisible Bob Pin Inserted By Clever New Device

By ARLINE GOULD

THERE SHOULD BE blowing of trumpets, a fanfare of drums and peals of organ music to go with this story.

Because it's about a wonderful discovery we've made. A discovery which solves the problems of hair curling, eliminates forever straggly ends and creates almost magically a headful of curls.

This new device, which has just arrived in Boston, operates simply. Just a few snaps of the wrist and you have a lovely, close-to-the-scalp, natural looking curl. And the best of it is that the curl is automatically held in place by an invisible bob pin!

There's no hair pull, no fumbling for stray ends and, wonder of wonders, your head is not bowed down by heavy uncomfortable curlers.

It's a boon for those who curl their hair before going to bed, because the little bob pins cannot possibly interfere with your sleep. If you prefer to do your hair in the morning, it takes just a moment or two.

You dampen your hair, make as many curls as you wish and go out without anyone the wiser, for no one can see the bob pins. Business girls could curl their hair in the afternoon before an important dinner date and no one in the office would realize it.

It's the only method we've ever known whereby you can look charming while curling your hair! After they're dry, the little rolls may be left as they are, or combed out into soft, glamorous waves. With this curler you can achieve intriguing effects for evening coiffures, with high curls that really stay.

This new curler is actually more economical than the old-fashioned kind. For no matter how many curls you wish to have—from a few end curls to an entire "curly top"—all you need is just one curler and bob pins. And that one curler will last indefinitely.

Included with the curler are bob pins made of high tempered spring steel. This pin holds the curl very firmly. Ordinary bob pins may be used, however, when this supply runs out.

If you would like to know the name of this grand new curler and where it may be purchased, write Arline Gould, Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope. Or telephone her at Liberty 4000.

Safeguarding Against Anthrax

DURING THE last century greater strides have been made in medicine than during any previous era.

To recall what our grandparents did makes us realize the truth of this statement. They often treated infected wounds with applications of vinegar, rum, gunpowder and cabbage-leaf poultices.

A disease known as "wool sorter's disease," now called "anthrax," called for all sorts of ridiculous and repulsive applications.

As regards this particular ailment, there is no wonder little aid could ... given because the cause was not known. Our present knowledge of what to do was made possible by research and diligent efforts in the laboratories. Today, it is well known that "wool sorter's disease" can only be caused by the germ with the big name, "bacillus anthracis."

This organism thrives in diseased animals and is transmitted to man by the handling of diseased beasts. Though the infection can be transmitted through the lungs or the digestive organs, it is most commonly contracted through the skin by actual contact with the diseased animal.

For this reason, anthrax was commonly encountered in butchers, veterinarians, farm laborers and other persons having contact with cattle. It was also found among workers in the various trades where wool, horse hair and similar substances were used.

The ailment is not as common as in former years. This satisfactory state of affairs is due to the enforcement of measures which protect against the disease.

Copper Tones Take Lead In Hosiery

WARM, bronzy, flattering shades are the colors that predominate for new Fall hosiery.

There is a decided trend to lighter, clearer trends and coppery and rust tones are repeated because of their past success.

In creating the new hosiery colors, it is evident that particular attention has been given to their blending qualities with new color developments in costumes, shoes and other accessories.

Because hosiery shades have taken on new importance, color charts are offered suggesting which shade is the most flattering to wear with each basic costume. Note these carefully, if you will be smart.

Hosiery shades are flying colors for Fall and are named after Autumn leaves . . . and some are identified with names of Roman flavor.

Another range of hosiery colors develop a sweet tooth and are named after delicious candies.

As has been mentioned before, there is much attention given to coppery and rust shades.

Pottery Rust, a true-to-new russet shade, is recommended for wear with blue greens, gray, navy and black.

Pepper Pot is a lively copper color and is best with coppery and chaudron tones.

Copper Kettle is considered a high fashion accent for gray and darker greens.

Lighter and brighter shades which take their cue from Autumn leaves are singled out for early Fall. They are especially smart for sportswear and include Walnut, a brown beige for browns, darker greens, navy and black.

Beechwood, a russet tone is grand to wear with chaudron, blue and black.

Rosewood is a spicy beige to blend with brown and green.

The sweet spicy candy colors include praline, fudge, peanut brittle, caramel and butterscotch. Don't they sound delicious enough to eat? They blend beautifully with brown, black, green, blue and rust. Praline is particularly recommended for warm browns and dark greens.

Fudge will be worn as smart accent to chaudron, blue green and Autumn tones. Then there are new expressions in light and dark shades of gunmetal for more conservative taste.

Smoketone is a medium gray of taupe cast and is extremely smart with grays, purplish tones, vintage reds and black.

Tailleur brown has a metallic cast and is especially nice for dressy afternoon wear.

Hosiery for evening is of gossamer sheerness in light flesh tones and in neutral beige.

A SPECIALTY shop is featuring stocking "twins," two pairs and a spare. The explanation is that most people find they have one stocking frequently left over after wearing sheer stockings.

OXFORDS ENHANCE COSTUME

Bob Meda (Glass, C. Crawford Hollidge

DO YOUR brand new costume suit justice with a shoe which rises in a slim, high line, with the lovely curve of instep emphasized by patent leather, laced high and trig—as does this striking patent-and-suede oxford. The suit is a velvety woolen of American beauty (a shade important in the coronation color list) trimmed with kolinsky.

Fashion Flash

LONGCHAMPS beige is the new light color in the beige family which will be an important glove color this season. The "racing colors" of cayenne, guardsman red, autumn violet, hunt green and stroller blue will be worn by knowing sportswomen in doeskins and heavy sports fabrics.

Fall Hats Zoom Skyward

SPECTACULARLY tall, peaked and pointed, the latest autumn hats zoom skyward.

Towering toques, eerie witch hats, immense stovepipe and military models and wrapped Oriental turbans are the bizarre creations evolved by Paris milliners. These new hats are shown with matching accessories, which, like Jack's Beanstalk, have grown up overnight.

Gloves climb to a new high, afternoon pumps of ebony black kidskin feature very tall split tongues, and looped, twisted handles ride high, wide and handsome on the new big handbags.

HOSIERY with black heels, in gunmetal, taupe bark, off-black and Saunter are the intriguing offering of a famous hosiery mill.

Fashion Flash

COLORED gloves, last spring's fashion fetish, will be worn again this fall. The big family of browns and rusts are destined to be the selection of many smartly dressed women.

CLAYTAN is the shade for the yellowish rust, chaudron for the reddish rust and Mapletone for the fall version of luggage tan.

Mary of Scotland Type

RIGHT out of the pages of history step fall fashions lovely as a picture book, inspired by the tragic Mary Queen of Scots.

Dresses are fitted, with basque jackets, or trimmed with tiny covered buttons, starched ruffs, rich metallic cloth collars or lace jabots. Romantic and historic hats include felt bonnets decked with feathers and velvet berets adapted from the Scotch cap.

Derived from quaint shoes of the period are strap lace oxfords of black, wine and green, while for brisk fall days there are stunning tweed capes with picturesque double collars.

PICKING up the importance of lacings—and plenty of them—a suede step-in oxford and exactly matching bag are accented and laced with kidskin. Toes are faintly squared-off—just enough to be highly effective.
